With 25 device and diagnostics start-ups in its portfolio, the Pittsburgh Life Sciences Greenhouse aims to establish life-sciences companies in Western Pennsylvania by leveraging the area's top schools and best-in-class medical facilities. See what the Greenhouse's Harold Safferstein said about it here.

"The city has a lot of great technologies, but one of the things about Pittsburgh is, it doesn't have a lot of people to build stand-up companies around them. We help provide that nudge to get them to that next level." –Harold Safferstein, executive in residence, Pittsburgh Life Sciences Greenhouse
