

26 Mar 2020 | News

QUOTED. 26 March 2020. Kevin Harper.

by

The American Telemedicine Association expects CMS to provide additional support for telemedicine to help curb the spread of COVID-19. See what the organization's director of policy, Kevin Harper, said about the potential future of telemedicine here.

“There is probably going to have to be some sort of transition period. The goal here is to be able to collect as much data and understand the value that telehealth and virtual care provided during the pandemic so we can really come back and make permanent changes to the law.” – Kevin Harper, director of policy, American Telemedicine Association

- Find out more: Telemedicine Is Riding High, Hopes For More Provisions In 'Phase Three' COVID-19 Stimulus Package

Click here for a free trial of Medtech Insight