India is allowing importers and manufacturers of certain devices – for whom new licensing requirements came into effect on 1 January – to continue marketing their products for six months if they have already applied for a license. See what Rajiv Nath from the Association of Indian Medical Device Industry (AiMeD) said about it here.

The extra time given to importers and manufacturers by India “permits the regulators to clear [pending licensing] applications and take steps to create the infrastructure for testing and conformity assessment.” – Rajiv Nath, forum coordinator, AiMeD
