Medtech experts from around the world, including Australia's Stefan Harrer, spoke on the universal impact of digital solutions during the COVID-19 pandemic and lessons learned during a recent panel.

“What should stay face-to-face and what should not is really depending on the patient experience. This is a very important interaction between carer and patient ... it should be really a supportive system, not a replacement.” – Stefan Harrer, Chief Innovation Officer, Digital Health Cooperative Research Centre
